Decatur Lecture Course.

James Whitcomb Riley.

Opera House.

Thursday Evening, March 8th.

Reserved Seats 50c at Prescott's—Gallery 25c.

If I have a friend on a lecture committee in the United States this season, I want to whisper in his ear that one of the best hits he can make will be to surprise his audience with J. W. Riley. The people that once listen to him will want him back again the same season.

There is nothing but pure gold about Riley, and whatever he says is worth listening to. No lecture course is complete without him.

ROBT. J. BURDETTE.

DEAR PUBLIC: I take extreme delight in introducing 2 pure immediate notice in young and handsome friend, Mr. James Whitcomb Riley, who is a plummy man of purest ray serene. He is the only man I know that plays his own hand, or in words less personal, the only man that gives his own productions, and not other folks'. He is plummy than tung kan tell. DAILY REPUBLICAN.

This morning Marshal Mason received a letter from Anton Huebler, chief at police at St. Louis, conveying the gratifying information that the Frank Powers $100 watch, stolen from O. E. Curtis & Co.'s jewelry store about 10 days ago, is a sneak thief, had been found in that city. Some days ago Mr. Mason sent Chief Huebler a description of the watch and a personal letter, and consequently the chief made a special effort resulting in the discovery of the time-piece. The chief adds "I have hopes of catching the thief and will advise you." Possibly the watch was located in a pawn-shop. It will be restored to Curtis and Bros. in due time.

The Miller-Widick Wedding.

Married, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. S. Troutman, Thursday evening, March 1st, at 8 o'clock, at Beardale, Ill., by Rev. G. C. Cunningham, of Warrensburg, Ill., Mr. Jeremiah Miller, of Beardale, and Mrs. Phoebe Widick, of Decatur.

The wedding march was played by Miss Etta Troutman, and the supper was carefully prepared by friends of the bride.

All present partook in perfect good humor. The bride wore a beautiful brown sateen silk trimmed in plush. The groom wore the conventional black.

Guests present were Mrs. J. N. Keefe, of Warrensburg; Misses Fannie and Etta Miller, sisters of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Asa Gulick, brother and sister of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. John Lehman, Miss Ella Ford, John and Ora Gulick, May, Etta and Frank Miller. The reception was held to-day at the home of the groom.

Who Wants a Boy?

Mr. EMMETT—Mrs. Smith, residing in a part of A. Bradshaw's house on Spring Avenue, Decatur, has a grandson 11 years old. She as well as the boy is anxious to get a home for the boy on a farm. She does not want to put him where there are other boys. He is a very nice boy—likes to feed and handle stock.

Coming.

On Wednesday evening next come "The Early Bird Novelty and Burlesque Co." The company includes John "Jolly" Nash, Flynn and Zittella, Miss Maude Chawwood, Frank and Marion, Nuber Hansen, and others, numbering 20 in all. The performance will conclude with the intensely amusing travesty on the popular novel by H. Rider Haggard, "She, or one in a thousand years." Written expressly for the "Early Birds" by Messrs. Harry Emmitt and Gov. Ad. Ryan. Music by Fred Solomon.

The success attending the organization of the Fifth Ward Republican Club seems to be troubling the Cleveland worshippers. It might be well for their organ, however, not to put too much trust in its volunteer reporters. It is a fact that their zeal sometimes gets away with their veracity. Meantime the Fifth Ward Club will go on, just as though the Democratic alphabet did not have a Vowel in it.

"Rats."

There was a little scare at the county jail last evening between 7 and 8 o'clock, caused by a peculiar scratching and the barking of a dog in the basement under the stone part of the prison. A telephone message was sent to the police headquarters for a "policeman to come over at once." Marshal Mason and Officer Butts got there in quick time, finding the dog in the basement barking viciously at nothing. It is believed that the dog was making war on rats, but at the beginning of the noise Mrs. Maury thought somebody was trying to break in or out of the jail. As the officers went over on double quick time they had visions of the presence of a lynching party from Platt county, but fortunately they didn't have to contend with such an unruly element. The turkey taken at the jail door while the police went through the basement.

DURING the forty-eight years of the existence of the foreign board of the Presbyterian church, 433 missionaries, of all classes, have been engaged in the missions east and west of the Mississippi river. The foreign board has expended $520,000, the free gift of the churches, besides $520,000 intrusted to it by the government for educational work.

MR. J. M. CLOKEY was abroad in the city to-day distributing handsome lithographic maps of the East Park Boulevard, including a railroad map and a sketch of Decatur. It is a fine advertisement not only for Mr. Clokey's pretty addition of residence lots, but also for Decatur.

THE disturbance case against Fred Behrend was dismissed in Justice Olor's court this morning by the defendant paying the costs.

CAPT. FRANK WELLS visited Springfield this week. It trouble arises from the strike on the C, B. & Q. road, possibly the militia will be called out to protect property.

A MEETING for the study of the Sunday school lesson, for next Sunday will be held in the lecture room of the First M. E. church this evening at 7:30, conducted by Rev. James Miller, who will give a fifteen minutes talk on the lesson to be followed by a general discussion. Everybody invited.

DR. J. F. REID will make a trip through the southern part of the state next week to look after glandered horses. His report will be incorporated in that of the state board of live stock commissioners.

"SI Perkins" To-Night.

Frank Jones and his company have arrived to give "SI Perkins" to-night. The Peoria Transcript had this to say of the performance:

Frank Jones followed immediately on the heels of his namesake and gave a good performance under the title "SI Perkins, or the Thrashing Machine Agent." Mr. Jones himself is a very good comedian, and kept the audience in a continual titter when he told the story. A number of entirely new jokes and laughable incidents are thrown into the performance, and Mr. Jones carries Southern in good shape. Miss Alice Montague made a very good Zana, and Miss Virginia Fisher as Betty Ruggles was a complete success. While Ryan was the son of the Western Buzzer acted his part very fairly and showed his ability to shake his feet in a splendid manner. The rest of the company was fair and the evening's entertainment a good one. A new comedy character has been introduced to take the place of the Irishman, the Dutchman and the Yankee.

DANA AT HIS DESK.

THE EDITOR OF THE NEW YORK SUN AND HOW HE WORKS.

He Goes Up to His Office Two Steps at a Time, Is Always Ready to Talk Business, and Won't Be an Old Man Till He Is Ninety.

(Special Correspondence.)
New York, Feb. 27.—A stranger to New York standing in the counting room of the New York Sun between 9:30 and 10 o'clock a. m., on almost any day in the year, would be apt to see a tall, muscular man pass through and go up stairs. If he was observant he would notice that this man moved quickly and alertly, and if the stranger loved him, would probably find him taking the stairs two at a time. On arriving at the third floor the stranger would see the tall man pass through a wicket gate, which closed with a spring after him, and disappear through a side door into the editorial rooms.
At the same time the stranger would find himself confronted at the wicket gate by a newly dressed boy, who would politely ask him the nature of his business. If he were fortunate enough to carry with him a letter of introduction to Mr. Charles Anderson Dana from a common friend, the boy would disappear for a moment, carrying the letter with him, and on returning would ask the stranger to walk into Mr. Dana's room.

Now that the stranger is in the sanctum sanctorum, he looks around him and sees a plainly furnished, uncarpeted room about 12 by 15 feet in size. On the walls hang portraits of Abraham Lincoln, the four Harpers brothers, Count Johnnies, Horace Greeley and the Tribune and a fine steel engraving of a young girl rapt in dreamy meditation. The mantel of the unused fireplace, for the room is heated by steam, is covered with a spring after him, and disappear
through a side door into the editorial rooms.
At the same time the stranger would find
himself confronted at the wicket gate by a newly dressed boy, who would politely ask him the nature of his business. If he were fortunate enough to carry with him a letter of introduction to Mr. Charles Anderson Dana from a common friend, the boy would
disappear for a moment, carrying the letter
with him, and on returning would ask the stranger to walk into Mr. Dana's room.

There are two small tables in the editor's room. On one is piled up books for review, and the other stands beside a window which overlooks City Hall park and the municipal buildings. Latterly Mr. Dana has dropped into the habit of working chiefly at the small table by the window. From a brass headed nail driven into the window casing hang two coats, which show a good deal of wear at the elbows. One of these is heavy and intended for winter use, and the other is worn in summer.

Mr. Dana enters his room and takes his seat in a stout oak armchair, which contains a well worn cushion covered with red leather. Judging from its appearance this chair has seen long service, but the owner, it is well preserved, and capable of still longer service.

The first hour of the editor's working day is taken up with reading the mail and the several letters, of which he daily receives about forty. Among these are many from well meaning people, who generously proffer advice as to the best method of conducting a great daily newspaper. These are thrown in the waste basket. Some of the letters bear foreign postmarks, and contain pleasant reminiscences from distinguished men whom Mr.
Dana has met and fraternized with in his travels, for with all the conservatism of advancing years, there is a spice of Bohemianism in Mr. Dana's character that nothing will eradicate. Other letters arrive asking for advice from personal friends, but these though they may differ with Mr. Dana politically, yet recognize in him a true and faithful exponent of America for Americans.

This necessary work done, he calls for the principal exchange newspapers from other cities, which he glances over quickly, but comprehensively. Then he looks through the New York papers. After having thus secured himself a knowledge of the news of the leading topics of the day, he calls in his stenographer. He then dictates his editorials.
Greatly to the relief of The Sun's compositors, Mr. Dana seldom puts pen to paper. When he does write his penmanship is simply execrable. Probably no man in this country is Mr. Dana's superior in rapidity and fluency of thought and expression. On his return from a trip to Mexico about two years ago he talked off a column and a half of headed nonpareil in twenty minutes, and then he dictated this in type in less than fifteen minutes. Mr. Dana's editorials form a little culmination for the other columns of The Sun. They are brief, pithy and say in a few words, aptly chosen, what others try to express in labored sentences of wearisome length.

On the top of the dissecting room, and a toilet room is arranged to connect with it.
There is no access to the dissecting room except through the professor's rooms. It is intended that every student entering the hall shall go through the dissecting room and change his dress, and leaving, he shall return through the toilet room. It is intended that all the appointments about the building shall surround the dissecting room and change the world for convenience and utility.

The English Tradesman's Courtesy.
In his relations to his customer the English tradesman is very different from the American. The former pays much more attention and consideration to a customer than is to be seen on this side of the water. Each individual person is given an amount of time, explanation and suggestion far beyond what is accorded to the customer in this country.
In pursuance of the Englishman's policy of doing everything possible to please and assist his customer, that he may hold trade once more. The Englishman's policy is to push undesirable or questionable goods on established customers; and they have to follow the same precept with the new and chance customer, in order to get his good will and make a friend of him. The habitual courtesy and consideration on the part of tradesman and clerk tells in the long run, and gives an attraction to the fine English shop, that is not to be found in any of our American stores.—The Haberdasher.

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.—Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, arrived in this city from Washington yesterday afternoon. He was met at the Broad Street station by a committee consisting of Capt. J. C. Clipperton, grand secretary of the Order of Sons of St. George; J. Henry Williams, Thos. M. Thompson, George W. Deane, Dr. Schenck, and others. He was escorted to the Lafayette Hotel, where he will occupy the suite of rooms during his stay in this city. His secretaries, Captain Maycock and Mr. Burns, accompanied him. The distinguished visitor will be entertained during his stay in this city. Yesterday afternoon at five o'clock he was seated at the League by the society of the Sons of St. George, and last evening he gave a reception in the Horticulture Hall under the auspices of the Sons of St. George. About two thousand five hundred persons were present. To-day he will be entertained by George W. Childs, who will give a banquet in his honor, and leave for England on Friday or Saturday, and will sail for England next week.

The Flynn-Squire Trial Begins.
New York, March 1.—The trial of Maurice B. Flynn and Rollin M. Squire, charged with conspiracy against the city, was begun yesterday. Assistant District Attorney Dossoppe opened for the prosecution. At the conclusion of his address several motions were made to quash certain counts in the indictment, all of which were overruled. Ex-Mayor Edson testified that he appointed Squire commissioner of public works. He was asked to testify to conversation with Squire, when the defense objected and was sustained. City Chamberlain Ilyna identified the letter in which Squire promised to obey Flynn's directions. He was asked as to conversations about the letter with Flynn. The defense objected. The district attorney said that if the objection was sustained certain counts in the indictment, all of which were overruled.

Setting Up the Stakes for Grover.
ALBANY, N. Y., March 1.—Wm. Steinway, of New York, the member of the Democratic National committee representing New York State, arrived here yesterday and had a conference with Senator Murphy. As Mr. Murphy is recognized as President Cleveland's representative in the State Senate, there are numerous conjectures as to the object of the conference. It is thought by the majority of the Democratic politicians here that Steinway's visit has the purpose of adopting measures for the election of a solid Cleveland delegation to the National Democratic convention. Mr. Steinway also made a formal call on Governor Hill.

HOW TO SELL BUTTER.
A Business-Like System That Will Pay on Every Farm.
Dairyman who can not patronize creameries will find it to their advantage to secure customers in the nearest village or city, who will regularly consume all the butter they can make. If the farmer's milk is produced in a not difficult to get more consumers than better can be made for. Aside from the advantage of obtaining retail prices, there is really a saving in delivering the butter over the system of selling it at the stores, for private customers, having once learned the quantity they will use for the week or fortnight, rarely take less and frequently order extra quantities for special occasions, if it can be obtained. There is no farmer, however distant from market, who should not go at least once in two weeks.

Let pains be taken to pack the butter in the neatest way possible and to have it arrive in the very best condition so far as texture and surroundings are concerned. Aim always to have the vehicle it is carried in, also the crates, jars and other packages containing it as clean and attractive as they can be made. If it is necessary to carry apples, vegetables, hides or other products of the farm in the same wagon, let these be disposed of before the customers are served, and never allow anything with a pungent odor like the kerosene can to be carried in the same wagon. The difficulty last mentioned can sometimes be overcome by suspending the offending article for transportation below the body of the wagon. If a little thought is used and a few postal cards, it will be easy to get into correspondence with one's customers, who will frequently order sweet corn, green peas, string beans, pot cheese and other articles of high freight, but great profit, to be delivered when the butter is brought in.

A little printer's ink is often of advantage to farmers who follow this kind of trade, which is far more profitable than peddling, as it takes less time. The ink should be used in printing neat circulars which can be mailed to or left with customers, and others whom it is desired to make such. These can be printed and briefly say what the products are, and in return, what he will furnish, and whatever is wanted can be ordered when he is in, or before he arrives, by mail. This business-like system will pay on many farms where it has never yet been attempted, and this is the proper season of the year to make arrangements, look up customers for winter butter, have the printing done for early spring and prepare to make money.—Farm and Home.
